EXHIBITS

Thru January 10, 2017. Jorge Garza, Impressions. Oil, Acrylic, Glass. “Painting provides me complete freedom from constraints. The progression of a painting is unpredictable and sometimes the canvas talks to you. This freedom is exhilarating and you have to look within your soul, not with your eyes. At this precise instant, a piece of art is born.” Encinitas Library Gallery, 540 Cornish Drive. 760-753-7376 www.theartfusion.com/

Thru January 10, 2017. Moni Blom, It's the Little Things in Life. Stone Sculpture and Glass. Contemporary in style, cartoonish in color, these ceramic works broadcast playfulness and joy in an abstract way. Seeing all that is positive and possible requires a certain sort of mental discipline and these sculptures are reminders to do just that. Encinitas Library Gallery, 540 Cornish Drive. 760-753-7376 www.moniblom.com/

Thru Jan. 11, 2017. Yolande Snaith, Caught in Motion. Colored Pencil. “I developed a process of drawing figures in motion where I keep my pencil on the page continuously whilst following lines of movement. The resulting sketches reveal traces of movement in space, a visual map of physical spontaneity.” Encinitas Civic Center Gallery, City Hall, 505 S. Vulcan Avenue. Encinitas City Hall Gallery, 505 S Vulcan Ave. 760-633-2600. www.yolandesnaith.com

Thru Jan. 11, 2017. Alex Long, The Art of Raku. Pottery. Trained in production pottery, his passion for clay has led him to make one-of-a-kind pieces in Raku from small to monumental in size. Over the past 26 years, he has perfected this firing process that creates beautiful, one of a kind art pieces. Encinitas Civic Center Gallery, City Hall, 505 S Vulcan Avenue. 760-633-2600. www.alexlongart.com/

Thru Jan. 12, 2017. Maria De Castro, Avian Influence. Ceramic. The anthropomorphic figures explore the relationship of humanity and nature to current environmental issues such as global warming, resource depletion, overpopulation, and loss of habitat. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. www.mariadecastro.com

Thru Jan. 12, 2017. Patric Stillman, Studio Door, A Day at the Beach. Oil and Acrylic. All of the artists have working studios at The Studio Door. Their common philosophy is to allow emerging and professional artists to work side-by-side, build community and share resources. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. http://thestudidoor.com/inside/?page_id=1825/

Thru Jan. 12, 2017. Patric Stillman, Studio Door, A Day at the Beach. Glass Sculptures. This exhibition is a celebration of creative diversity. All of the artists have working studios at The Studio Door. Their common philosophy is to allow emerging and professional artists to work side-by-side, build community and share resources. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. http://thestudidoor.com/inside/?page_id=1825/

January 10-February 21. Barbara Mosher, Art As I See it. Acrylic. “The once silent tools are the messengers that communicate to me, how to tell the story. My art is filled with color. Sometimes joy, love, or beauty and sometimes deep or heavy emotions show their way. Whatever the feeling I have when I pick up a brush, I try communicating that to the world.” Encinitas Library Gallery, 540 Cornish Drive. 760-753-7376. www.barbaramosher.com

January 10-February 21. Joyce Schleiniger, Inner Realities I. Stoneware Sculptures. A combination of human forms with abstract elements in three dimensional compositions using a variety of colors and textures to accentuate the visual message of our need for inner beauty, balance and creative realities. Encinitas Library Gallery, 540 Cornish Drive. 760-753-7376. www.artisticfountains-byjoyce.com

January 11-March 8. Jason Adkins, Pretty Dirty Things. Oil and Acrylic. Filled with wafts of colors, referencing abstract gesture as “thing”. The landscapes play host while the expressionistic brushstrokes infer dependence and autonomy through color and harmony. RECEPTION: 1-14, 1-4pm. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. <http://jason-adkins.com>

January 11-March 8. Roz Light, *Quilt of Encinitas. Ceramic. In the garden, and from the sea, the tile paintings are of the local historical flora and fauna of Encinitas. January 12-March 9. Kyrstin Nihill, *The Seven Seas. Encaustic. This series of paintings was inspired by the movement of the ocean. Sometimes fierce and pounding, other times gentle and rippling, these paintings use color, composition and texture to capture the energetic movements of water. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. www.knihill.com

January 12-March 9. Elizabeth Moore, *Ceramic Houses. Ceramic Sculptures. The ceramic houses are hand built stoneware and decorated with mason stains, oxides, glazes or acrylic paints. The form of the house inspires because it is simple, yet it expresses many different personalities. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. emitchellmoore@yahoo.com

Thru January 28, 2017. Xawery Wolski. Mixed Media. A collection of magnificent beaded artworks.
